

Great Wedding Gifts

Contributed by Patricia Brown
Wednesday, 28 March 2007
Last Updated Wednesday, 06 June 2007

A wedding is the single most important day for a couple starting a new life together. The gift you choose to commemorate the event should be nothing short of unforgettable.

The most treasured of all wedding gifts are more than just dishes or a set of pots and pans. There are many styles of gifts to choose from. Some will give the happy couple an item to help them as they set up their new home. Others purchase practical gifts that all new couples need in order to get started with their new life. But the gifts with the most lasting impression are those of best quality, and those with thoughtful meaning to commemorate the bride and groom's special day. {niftybox width=350px,float=right,textalign=center}

Personalized Marquis by Waterford Romance Flutes

This elegant crystal flute set from Marquis by Waterford is a gift they'll treasure forever. They're beautifully crafted of 24% lead crystal and make the perfect wedding or anniversary present! Engrave their name or initials for a personal touch. {/niftybox}

Gifts to be treasured for a lifetime are those that are personalized. For example, a thoughtful and personal wedding gift might be something engraved with the bride and groom's names and their wedding date. Personalized wedding albums or picture frames are wonderful tokens that show you've put extra effort into picking the perfect gift. The couple will have fond memories of their special day every time they glance at your gift.

Gifts that are themed to the bride and groom's tastes, or reflect something magical about their special day, are memorable and very much appreciated. Many couples have a wedding theme, such as a Disney-inspired or Hawaiian wedding. By choosing something to represent their special theme, you will be giving the couple a memento to be treasured long after the wedding is over.

Weddings are magical events that should be remembered fondly. Instead of giving another forgettable token, choose an item that will be treasured. Show the couple they are unique by presenting them with an extra special gift. All it takes is a personalized message or a thought about them to make it the perfect gift to celebrate their new life together.

Show the bride and groom how much you care, and they'll appreciate you as much as they'll love their special gift.

About the Author: Patricia Brown contributes to several web magazines, on shopping and product tips and great shopping ideas topics.